ANNUAL ▪ REPORT

COORDINATING BOARD
Texas College and University System

Kenneth H. Ashworth, Commissioner of Higher Education ▪ August 31, 1983

LETTER FROM THE CHAIRMAN

The Honorable Mark White, Governor of Texas
The Honorable William P. Hobby, Lieutenant Governor of Texas
The Honorable Gib Lewis, Speaker of the House of Representatives
Members of the 68th Legislature

The Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System, was created in 1965 to oversee the development of a sprawling system of higher education that rapidly was adding degree programs and expanding facilities to accommodate a soaring student population. Today, growth has stabilized, and coordination increasingly demands a balance between striving to enrich higher education and making efficient use of limited resources. I am pleased to submit this Annual Report of the Coordinating Board's efforts in fiscal year 1983.

To control unnecessary expansion of the college and university system, the Board designed tougher rules for establishing new institutions and programs and initiated a comprehensive study of each institution's role in meeting the state's educational needs. Another study recommended an increased investment in organized research to promote both higher education and economic development in Texas.

The Board also worked to expand educational opportunities through the Texas equal educational opportunity plan and through the administration of close to $50 million in student financial aid. In an effort to upgrade academic standards and eliminate the need for costly remedial courses, the Board published a booklet for high school students outlining skills needed for college-level work.

A companion document to this report, the statistical supplement, contains additional information regarding enrollments, funding and degree programs in Texas higher education in 1983.

The Coordinating Board and its staff appreciate the continued support of the executive and legislative branches of state government in our common effort to provide an effective system of higher education for Texas citizens.

Respectfully submitted,

Larry Temple

THE COORDINATING BOARD

The Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System, is a statutory, 18-member board appointed by the Governor. It is responsible for statewide planning and policymaking to assure quality and efficiency in Texas higher education. As required by law, the Board met quarterly in Austin in October 1982 and January, April and July 1983. A special called meeting was held in San Antonio in December 1982.

The Texas Legislature created the Board in 1965 and has continued to add to its statutory responsibilities since that time. The Board's primary responsibilities are academic and health affairs, financial planning, student services and campus planning.

The Board:

- Approves or disapproves all degree programs of Texas public colleges and universities.
- Recommends the establishment, discontinuance or combining of public institutions.
- Authorizes elections for the creation of public junior college districts and adopts standards for their operation.
- Develops and recommends formulas to the Governor and Legislative Budget Board for their use in determining legislative appropriations and equitable distribution of state funds to colleges and universities.
- Supervises planning, utilization, evaluation and reporting of academic development.
- Recommends policies for efficient use of construction funds and orderly development of physical plants.
- Administers the state's college student loan program and other financial aid programs and a higher education uniform insurance benefits program.
- Administers the family practice residency training program for improving the distribution of family physicians in Texas.
- Assesses educational supply and occupational demand for graduates of Texas postsecondary education institutions.
- Develops transfer curricula in various disciplines to facilitate the transfer of students among public institutions.
- Awards certificates of authority to grant degrees to private unaccredited institutions that meet state educational standards.
- Restricts the operation of substandard or fraudulent institutions in the private sector.

HIGHLIGHTS OF 1983

Higher aims, tighter belts

Declining state revenues in 1983 underscored the Coordinating Board's commitment to channeling available resources into sound academic investments. The Board in 1983 exercised caution in approving new degree programs and campus facilities to ensure that growth was attuned to the state's educational needs. The Board also sought to advance equal educational opportunities by monitoring the state's higher education desegregation plan and by administering funds to attract minority students, faculty and staff to public colleges and universities.

The state continued to allocate hefty increases in higher education spending, both as an investment in its economic future and as a means of meeting the needs of a growing student population. The 68th Legislature appropriated $15.1 billion to higher education for fiscal year 1984 and $15.6 billion in 1985, a 22.7 percent increase over the last biennium. Higher education's share of the Texas budget has grown steadily since 1970 and now accounts for almost a fifth of total spending (see chart on page 2).

Increasing enrollments, increasing campus needs

Enrollments in Texas colleges and universities grew 6.28 percent in fall 1982, the largest increase in six years. Growth was concentrated in public universities and community colleges, where close to 42,000 additional students enrolled (see table on page 3).

While continuing to stress efficient use of existing facilities and academic resources, the Coordinating Board authorized 32 new degree programs and $127 million in campus construction and repair projects to accommodate the growing student population. At the same time, however, the Board sought to impose stricter criteria for the creation of new institutions, departments and doctoral programs to guard against unnecessary expansion of the higher education system.

The 68th Legislature further stressed efficiency in higher education through development of a comprehensive plan for financing campus construction and repair and denial of a number of expansion attempts.

A proposed constitutional amendment to be presented to state voters in 1984 would provide a permanent source of building funds for public universities outside the University of Texas and Texas A&M University Systems and would allow all UT and A&M schools to participate in the Permanent University Fund. The legislation includes provisions allowing for review of proposed construction and renovation projects and stipulates that state funds are not to be used for auxiliary enterprises.

Gov. Mark White vetoed a $200,000 feasibility study of a new campus for the University of Houston System, and lawmakers disapproved expansion plans at four other higher education institutions.

A commitment to equal educational opportunity

Following federal approval in June of the Texas plan for equal educational opportunity, the Coordinating Board staff began immediate implementation of a number of the state's commitments. The Board will monitor the progress of Texas public colleges and universities in increasing black and Hispanic enrollments and will report annually to the U.S. Office for Civil Rights.

The state plan sets a goal of enrolling 2,432 more black students and 3,190 more Hispanic students at predominantly white universities and 150 more white students at the predominantly black Prairie View A&M and Texas Southern Universities. The state will seek to enroll 290 more blacks and 513 more Hispanics in traditionally white graduate and professional schools.

The state further pledges to upgrade Prairie View and Texas Southern by implementing a slate of high-demand degree programs and launching capital improvement plans totaling close to $250 million. In line with that effort, the Coordinating Board in 1983 approved new baccalaureate degrees in computer science and computer engineering technology at Prairie View and master's degrees in professional accountancy and transportation and a doctoral degree in pharmacy at Texas Southern. The programs are intended to attract additional white students to the universities.

The 68th Legislature approved $13.5 million for construction needs at Prairie View and $23.6 million at Texas Southern in 1984-85 after two studies commissioned by the Board indicated that physical facilities at the two universities did not compare favorably with other, predominantly white, public universities. The Legislature also trusteed $500,000 to the Board for administration of the State Scholarship Program for Ethnic Recruitment. The program is intended to help desegregate college campuses by encouraging the enrollment of black and Hispanic students at predominantly white universities and of white students at universities with largely black and Hispanic populations. The state also provided matching funds to foster local recruitment programs aimed at increasing the number of minority faculty and staff members at public universities.

College preparation, research, nursing education

The Board published a number of special studies in 1983 addressing higher education concerns. Among them:

- Goals for College Success advised high school students about the preparation they need for college. Developed by a 22-member panel of high school and college educators, the booklet was distributed to students and counselors around the state. The booklet is aimed at reducing a growing need for costly remedial education among entering college students.
- Organized Research in Texas: A Critical Need encouraged lawmakers to increase state financial support of organized research at public colleges and universities. The study cited a number of successful research ventures that contributed to the development of the Texas economy and returned substantial gains on the state's financial investment.

- Nursing Education in Texas: Directions for the Future warned of future shortages of nursing personnel unless recruitment efforts and career opportunities for nurses are improved. The report was the culmination of an 18-month study by a special advisory committee.

Changes in Board and staff membership

Newton Gresham of Houston, a member of the Coordinating Board since its creation in 1965 and vice chairman until 1979, was appointed chairman of the Board by Gov. Mark White in July. Gresham served as Board chairman until the expiration of his term in fall 1983.

New members named to the Board in fiscal 1983 included former State Rep. William Caraway of Houston and former Ector County Judge Gary L. Watkins of Odessa. Charles Butt of Corpus Christi resigned in February after almost five years on the Board. Butt was vice chairman of the Committee on Senior Colleges and Universities and had served as chairman of an ad hoc committee on faculty compensation in 1980.

Two executive staff members also left the staff in 1983. Lawrence K. Pettit, associate commissioner and head of the senior colleges and universities division since 1981, became chancellor of the University System of South Texas. Dean Herbst, assistant commissioner for health affairs since the division was created in 1977, retired after 10 years on the Board staff. The Board in July approved a reorganization of the staff that reduces the number of divisions from seven to five. A new Division of Academic and Health Affairs was created, combining the former Divisions of Senior Colleges and Universities, Community Colleges and Continuing Education and Health Affairs. The Board adopted a $6.8 million operating budget for the agency in 1984, up 8.8 percent from 1983.

FINANCIAL PLANNING

Investing in academic quality

Although higher education reaped a 22.7 percent increase in appropriations for the 1984-85 biennium, a recurrent drop in available state revenues during the 68th legislative session underscored the need for effective use of limited resources. The Coordinating Board continued to encourage state lawmakers to invest in academic quality, particularly through competitive faculty salaries, support of organized research, subsidization of medical education and upgrading of teaching equipment.

Higher education appropriations total $5.8 billion for the next two years. Funding for all sectors was increased by at least 20 percent over 1982-83 levels (see table below). The Legislature funded 12 higher education formulas for public senior colleges and universities at 85.4 percent of Coordinating Board recommendations.

Formula funds: equipment, utilities, research

State lawmakers approved a hefty increase in formula funding for departmental operating expenses, one of the areas of greatest need among public colleges and universities. A 23.2 percent increase was approved for fiscal 1984, with an additional 2.4 percent increase allotted for 1985. The Board had recommended significant increases in state support for departmental spending to help universities replace obsolete teaching equipment.

Although no money was appropriated for a new Engineering Excellence Fund, the Board was directed to assess institutional needs and present future funding recommendations to the Legislative Budget Board. By matching state funds with private contributions, the fund was designed to assist public engineering schools in purchasing costly teaching equipment.

Statewide formula appropriations were increased 4 percent for 1984 and 2 percent for 1985 for college and university faculty. Faculty raises are to be based on merit and performance in teaching, research and service.

The Legislature raised appropriations for utilities at state universities 11.3 percent for 1984 and 23.1 percent for 1985 and trusteed a $23.3 million contingency fund to the Board to cover possible cost overruns. Early in the legislative session, lawmakers approved a $16.1 million emergency appropriation to pay utilities costs at 27 institutions where fiscal 1983 funds were depleted.

Less than $9 million in formula-generated funds was earmarked for organized research at public colleges and universities in 1984, just $330,000 above 1983 appropriations. Some $9.2 million was allocated for 1985. A 4.8 percent

Faculty salaries

Eclipsing the national average

Average faculty salaries for all ranks in Texas were $1,900 behind the national average in 1980–81. An 18 percent pay raise authorized by the 67th Legislature in 1981 helped boost the Texas pay scale up to, and eventually above, the national rate.

rise in the Consumer Price Index between August and September 1983, however, indicates that the 3.7 percent increase is unlikely to result in any real gain. The Board had recommended $34.1 million for organized research in 1984 and $37.2 million the following year as an investment in the economic development of the state.

Research report cites benefits for state economy

A report to the Governor, Lieutenant Governor and members of the Legislature illustrated the economic benefits of university research activities. Organized Research in Texas: A Critical Need cited as one example the success of the cotton module project at Texas A&M University, which has contributed to improved cotton production in the state. Researchers estimate that the $410,000 invested in the project has generated a return of $229 million a year.

The report further showed that while the costs of conducting research have risen, real spending by the state has declined. Increased state support is particularly crucial, the report asserted, because of negligible gains in federal funding.

Federal support of research at Texas public colleges and universities grew by less than 1 percent in fall 1982, leading to the smallest overall growth in research funds in 10 years. Available funding at public universities and medical, dental and health-related institutions totaled $337.2 million, up 7.4 percent from 1981. The increase narrowly exceeded a 5.9 percent inflation rate for the same period.

Federal funds totaled $182.4 million, an increase of less than $1 million. The federal share of research funds fell from 57.8 percent to 54.1

percent of the total. State appropriations grew 30.6 percent to $85.9 million, 25 percent of the total.

Texas public universities received $218.8 million for research and devoted more than half—$118.1 million—to engineering and the physical sciences. Health-related institutions received $118.3 million, with 95 percent of the funds allocated for biomedical research.

The average salary for faculty of all ranks at Texas public colleges and universities rose above the national average in 1982-83. The average Texas salary was $29,200, compared with $29,100 nationwide.

Salaries for faculty of the first four ranks rose even higher above the national rate: full professors' salaries in Texas exceeded the national average $38,000 to $37,000; associate professors, $29,400 to $27,800; assistant professors, $23,900 to $22,700; and instructors, $18,700 to $17,800.

Guidelines designed to increase career opportunities for younger faculty through voluntary reductions in the teaching workload of senior faculty members were endorsed by the Board for recommendation to the state's public universities. The guidelines suggest a voluntary early retirement program in which participating faculty members over 60 years old would teach at less than half time, accept a reduced salary and relinquish tenure rights. The procedure would allow the promotion of younger faculty members and enable senior faculty to pursue personal interests.

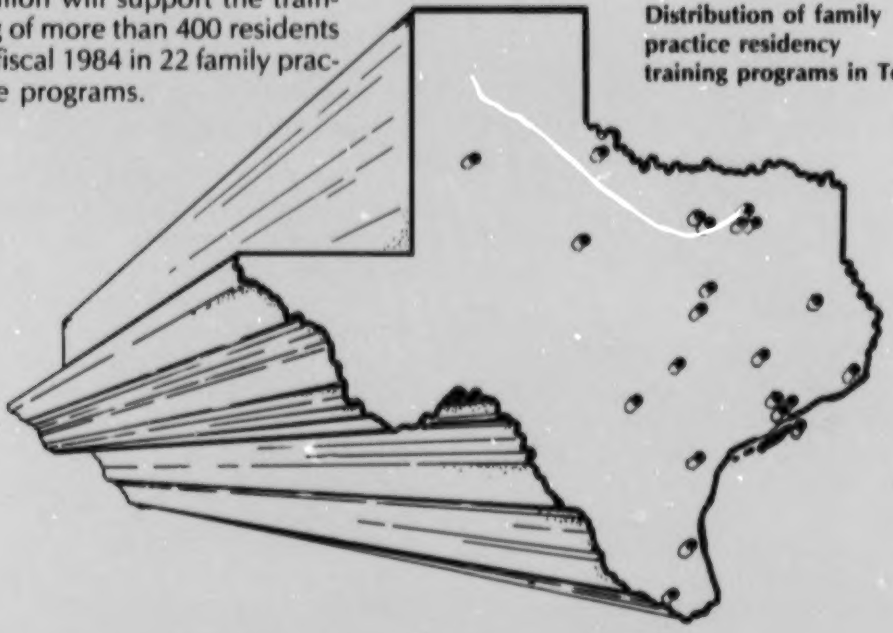
Providing doctors to areas in need

State funds totaling $5.7 million will support the training of more than 400 residents in fiscal 1984 in 22 family practice programs.



Distribution of family practice residency training programs in Texas practice residency training programs and $3 million for training resident physicians.

The Board approved allocation of fiscal 1984 funds as well as approximately $370,000 in funds remaining from 1983 for 22 family practice programs around the state. The money will be disbursed according to the number of residents in training. A total of 377 residency positions were funded in 1983.

The family practice training program is part of the state's attempt to provide medical services to rural and other underserved areas of the state. The map above illustrates the wide distribution of family practice programs in Texas.

Family practice funds administered by the Board also support the state preceptor program, which provides hands-on experience to medical students in their junior and senior years, and the Family Practice Faculty Development Center in Waco, established to increase the number of family practice faculty and to improve faculty skills.

For the first time, state funds will be provided for compensation of resident physicians at seven Texas medical schools. A total of $3 million authorized by the 68th Legislature will be administered by the Board in 1984. Compensation for resident physicians was endorsed by the Legislature in 1981.

The Board also authorized state contracts with Baylor College of Medicine and Baylor College of Dentistry to assist the institutions in training Texas resident students. A $29.7 million contract with the medical school will provide $51,616 per student in 1984, and a $13.3 million contract with the dental school will provide $27,879 per student. Funds to execute state contracts with the institutions have been trusteed to the Board since 1972.

Quality supersedes growth

Academic quality—rather than academic growth—continued to be the focus of the Coordinating Board's assessment of educational needs in Texas public colleges and universities. Proposed new rules will make it tougher for colleges and universities to create new institutions, departments or doctoral programs, which could dilute available resources for other needs. A comprehensive reexamination of the role and scope of public universities will assist in the Board's consideration of new degree programs.

Tougher rules proposed to curb expansion

New rules and regulations under consideration at the end of the fiscal year reiterate a state law requiring a two-thirds vote of the Board to approve the creation of a new institution. They further demand that institutions seeking new doctoral programs demonstrate "clear and convincing evidence that the state is in need of the program." The question of need is preeminent, Commissioner Kenneth Ashworth advised, to prevent unnecessary costs to the state and the overproduction of graduates in fields for which there is insufficient market demand.

The rules further require proposals for new institutions, major program changes or new graduate or professional schools to be considered at two quarterly Board meetings. The stipulation, which also applies to requests for new health-related schools and schools of veterinary medicine and engineering, will allow the Board adequate time for careful consideration of potentially costly proposals.

A panel of national experts and a group of Texas educators convened in 1983 to assist the Board in the development of role and scope statements for public universities. The eight-member out-of-state panel, which includes higher education commissioners, university chancellors and faculty members, will advise the Board regarding its role in the development and use of role and scope statements. The 11 members of the Texas advisory committee, including representatives from public universities and university systems around the state, will provide further assistance to the Board and serve as liaisons with the campuses.

New programs created to meet emerging needs

A total of 32 new degree programs approved by the Board for 21 public universities included five doctoral programs, 15 master's programs and 12 baccalaureate programs. In conjunction with its review of proposals for new PhD programs, the Board continued to assess the quality of existing programs in its determination of additional state needs. Teams of out-of-state experts examined doctoral offerings in educational administration; educational psychology, counseling and guidance and student personnel services; special education; and psychology.

New doctoral programs approved include a PhD in physical therapy to be offered on the Houston campus of Texas Woman's University. The first of its kind in Texas and one of the few offered nationwide, the program will educate specialists in physical therapy research and teaching.

The Board also adopted a policy designed to speed the implementation of authorized degree programs and administrative changes. The policy permits institutions to certify in advance that adequate funds are available to implement a proposed new program. The availability of funds will be reviewed by the Division of Financial Planning before the program is considered by the Board. The previous, two-step procedure called for Board consideration of the proposed program or administrative change and subsequent certification of adequate funding. The new policy does not apply to programs requiring legislative appropriations or funds from other special sources.

At least 24 degree programs that are inactive or have not been implemented will be deleted from program inventories at Texas public universities, according to a report presented to the Board at the end of the fiscal year. The report indicated that 59 degree programs and administrative changes authorized by the Board are inactive or have not been implemented at 16 universities and health-related schools. The institutions reported plans to implement at least 15 of the programs, while the status of remaining programs is under consideration. The report complies with sunset procedures initiated by the Board in January 1982.

Advice for high school students and forecasts for graduates

"If you expect to succeed in college, you should train yourself adequately in communication, mathematics, reasoning and study skills," states a booklet distributed by the Board to high school students across the state. Goals for College Success: A Practical Reference for College Preparation was developed by a team of 22 Texas educators and academic administrators in response to a growing need among college freshmen for remedial education.

While Goals for College Success addressed students who planned to enter college, two studies by the Board focused on students who were exiting. A revised edition of Postsecondary Educational Supply and Occupational Demand, the Board's periodic forecast of employment opportunities for Texas college graduates, was published in the spring. The report noted a more competitive job market over the next two years because of an oversupply of college graduates in the work force. The study further predicted a shortage of school teachers in bilingual, elementary and special education and in secondary mathematics and physical science.

A follow-up study in the summer of 1982 revealed that 58.8 percent of May graduates of Texas colleges and universities had entered the job market and 39.6 percent of them had found work within three months of graduation. Some 90 percent of the graduates remained in Texas to work, 62.2 percent in the Houston and Dallas/Fort Worth areas. The study surveyed close to 10,000 graduates of 13 Texas public and independent universities.

Attempting to avoid future shortages of nurses

Recruitment of more "nontraditional" students and development of outreach programs will help prevent future nurse shortages in the state, a comprehensive study of nursing education in Texas concluded in July.

Nursing Education in Texas: Directions for the Future warns of a shortfall of 4,000 registered nurses by 1987 unless more men, minorities and older students are attracted to nursing programs and adequate incentives are provided to keep nurses in the profession. The report also asserts that "the addition of new free-standing programs would dilute already scarce nursing educational resources" and endorses outreach programs on a short-term basis to help alleviate immediate needs in underserved regions.

The report was the product of an 18-month study by a special advisory committee.

Off-campus courses, certification and transfer curricula

In other activity related to academic planning, the Board approved annual plans by public junior and senior institutions to offer lower-division courses at off-campus locations in 1983-84. The plans call for the fewest number of new courses and locations since 1975. The Board also approved annual plans by public universities to offer off-campus courses at the upper-division and graduate levels. The number of such courses showed an 8.6 percent decline from the previous year, part of a 51.4 percent decline since 1977-78.

The Board authorized certificates of authority to grant degrees to six private unaccredited institutions. One certification request was withdrawn. The Board is authorized by law to award certificates of authority to grant degrees to unaccredited schools that meet minimum academic standards.

Transfer curricula were developed in journalism and home economics. The curricula recommend lower-division coursework in each field that may be transferred without loss of credit among public junior and senior institutions.

$50 million in aid awarded

The Coordinating Board administered close to $50 million in financial aid to Texas college and university students in 1982-83. State and federal funds were disbursed through the Hinson-Hazlewood College Student Loan Program and three grant and scholarship programs. The 68th Legislature appropriated $600,000 in the coming biennium for incentive programs to recruit more black and Hispanic students, faculty and staff members to public higher education institutions. The Board also published a Spanish version of its financial aid booklet, Ayuda Economica para Estudiantes de Tejas, to augment public awareness of student financial aid opportunities.

Hinson-Hazlewood loans total $25.2 million in 1982-83

The Hinson-Hazlewood College Student Loan Program awarded $25.2 million in loans to 12,580 students in 1982-83, a one-year increase of close to $4 million. The program boosted collections by $4.3 million to a total of $18.1 million. Loans awarded included $1,181,643 in supplemental federally guaranteed Health Education Assistance Loans provided to 285 students in medical, dental and certain other health-related programs.

Commissioner Kenneth Ashworth reduced the interest rates on HEAL loans and Auxiliary Loans to assist students from 14 to 12 percent on Nov. 1, 1982, and authorized a further reduction to 11.75 percent on HEAL loans awarded after Jan. 1, 1983. Interest rates are determined by the average interest rate charged on 91-day Treasury bills auctioned in the previous 12 months. Because fluctuations in Treasury bill rates could cause frequent revisions of student loan interest rates, the Board authorized the Commissioner to implement rate changes as necessary. Interest rates set by the Commissioner are subject to ratification at subsequent meetings of the Board.

For possibly the last time, the Board transferred a portion of federal monies to the student loan interest and sinking fund. The federal funds helped support administration of the Hinson-Hazlewood program and enabled the Board to avoid issuing bonds to finance the student loan program for the last six years. The Board transferred $2.6 million in 1983.

The Legislature this year voted to use the funds to support recruitment programs for minority students, faculty and staff at public colleges and universities and for other general operating expenses. This action probably will hasten the time when the Board will have to sell more bonds to meet student loan demand.

Administration of state and federal grant programs

Tuition equalization grants to 18,637 students in 45 independent colleges and universities in Texas totaled $19 million in 1982–83, a one-year increase of $1.75 million. Close to 4,000 of the grants were matched with federal funds provided under the State Student Incentive Grants program. Federal SSIG funds totaled $2.6 million, down $241,000 from the previous year.

The Legislature approved a measure prohibiting students who are not Texas residents and are attending an independent college or university in Texas from receiving tuition equalization grants after Sept. 1, 1983. The restriction does not apply to National Merit Scholars or to previous nonresident grant recipients still in school. Tuition equalization grants are financed through state appropriations.

The Board also administered $2.8 million to 5,902 students at public colleges and universities through the Texas Public Educational-State Student Incentive Grants Program. The program matches state funds set aside from tuition revenue with federal SSIG funds. TPEG-SSIG grants awarded in 1982-83 were up by $54,000 from the preceding year.

*Federal SSIG funds are matched with state funds to provide grants to students in Texas independent colleges and universities through the Tuition Equalization Grants Program and to students in public colleges and universities through the Texas Public Educational–SSIG program.

The Board also authorized the allocation of $3.3 million in federal funds the state expects to receive through the SSIG program in fiscal 1984. Independent colleges and universities will receive 61 percent or almost $2 million of the total because of higher tuition costs.

Recruiting minority students, faculty and staff members

The Board adopted guidelines for administering $600,000 in federal funds received by the state and designated by the Legislature for the recruitment of minority students, faculty and staff to Texas public colleges and universities in the 1984-85 biennium. The bulk of the funds—$500,000—will provide scholarships to students in an effort to desegregate college and university campuses. The remaining $100,000 will be divided among the state's 37 public senior institutions for recruitment of minority faculty and staff. The Legislature stipulated that state funds be matched with local revenues as a means of encouraging local support for minority recruitment programs.

The Board's guidelines reserve the scholarships for qualified students belonging to an ethnic group that constitutes less than 40 percent of the campus population. The guidelines are designed to bolster minority enrollments at predominantly white universities and to increase white student enrollments at universities with largely black or Hispanic populations.

The scholarship program replaces the Legislative Academic Scholarship Program created in 1981. The LAS program provided 386 scholarships totaling $262,740 to minority students at 29 state universities in 1982-83.

A comprehensive funding plan

A comprehensive framework for funding campus construction and repair earned legislative approval in 1983 and will be presented to state voters as a proposed constitutional amendment in November 1984. Ratification of the amendment would provide permanent sources of construction funds for the state's public universities. Seventeen public colleges and universities lost their source of construction finance in 1982 when state voters repealed the ad valorem tax. Institutions in need of building funds in 1983 approached the 68th Legislature, and the Coordinating Board assisted in the review of $751 million in construction and renovation proposals. The Board continued to encourage efficient use of state resources and assisted the institutions in managing high utility costs and making effective use of available facilities.

Responding to needs while controlling growth

In House Joint Resolution 19, the 68th Legislature proposed an annual allocation of $100 million in general revenues to finance building and renovation projects, property acquisitions and purchase of capital equipment and library materials at public universities not part of the University of Texas or Texas A&M University Systems. The proposed amendment would expand the bonding capacity of the Permanent University Fund from 20 to 30 percent and allow all UT and A&M institutions to participate.

Coordinating Board Chairman Newton Gresham endorsed the amendment proposal as "a fine solution to financing college construction. I am particularly pleased that the amendment allows the flexibility to respond to changing conditions while assuring that adequate controls can be maintained in a time of limited growth in higher education."

The amendment would:

- prohibit the creation of new colleges or universities without a two-thirds vote of the Legislature;
- allow review of construction projects by the state at all institutions except UT Austin, Texas A&M and Prairie View A&M University;
- prohibit use of state appropriations to build or repair dormitories, athletic facilities or other auxiliary enterprises, and prohibit use of the funds to provide permanent facilities for branch campus operations without legislative approval; and
- deny the schools additional funding for construction and renovations except in the event of fire or other natural disaster or "in cases of demonstrated need."

Approval of $127 million for construction and repairs

The Coordinating Board approved 37 construction and renovation projects totaling more than $127 million at public colleges and universities in 1983. Fifteen property acquisitions were authorized at a cost of $6.8 million.

The Board also assisted the Legislature in its consideration of new construction and repair and rehabilitation proposals requested by Texas public universities. The Board devised a system to rank some 65 proposed repair projects to help the Legislature determine the relative priority of each project in view of the state's limited resources.

Under this system, 32 proposed projects totaling more than $75 million were recommended for funding. The Board also recommended legislative funding totaling $20 million for new construction projects.

To keep pace with rising building costs, the Legislature raised the minimum cost of a campus construction or repair project requiring Board review from $100,000 to $300,000, effective Sept. 1, 1983. The legislation will reduce the number of small-scale improvements the Board must review. Lawmakers also exempted from the Board's approval authority all construction and repair projects at public community colleges financed with student fees bonds or private gifts. Any community college projects not funded with local ad valorem tax revenues previously were subject to Board review.

Managing utility costs and utilizing space

Guarding against possible misappropriation of state funds, the Board asked the staff to look into the practice by some universities of using utilities appropriations to retire revenue bonds. Commissioner Kenneth Ashworth pointed out that the practice contributed in large part to recent increases in utilities costs at the institutions. Twenty-seven public universities depleted their state appropriations for utilities in 1983, requiring the Legislature to authorize a $16 million emergency appropriation to cover the cost overruns.

The Board cosponsored a series of four energy management workshops to help colleges and universities deal with rising utilities expenses. Workshops in Austin, Dallas, Houston and San Antonio attracted more than 140 energy administrators and plant operators from Texas public and independent junior and senior institutions. The workshops were cosponsored by the Texas Energy and Natural Resources Advisory Council.

The Board's facilities inventory workshop introduced campus planners to the use of facilities inventory data in analyzing space use and determining future building and funding needs. Some 86 representatives from 63 public and independent institutions in Texas attended.

An annual survey of student housing on campuses around the state indicated a 93.4 percent occupancy rate among public senior institutions in fall 1982, down 0.8 percent from the previous year. The occupancy rate was 91.7 percent at public junior colleges, up 1.5 percent, and 88.2 percent at independent colleges and universities, down 3.4 percent.
